ABOUT THE COLLEGE

St. Ann's College of Education, a Catholic Minority Institution managed by the Society of the Sisters of St. Ann of Providence, is affiliated to Osmania University.

Established in 1966, it offers B.Ed and M.Ed programs and holds 'A' Grade accreditation from NAAC (4th Cycle). Operating under UGC Sections 2(f) and 12(B), the college aims to develop responsible, competent, and community-focused teachers. Its mission is to chisel students into intellectually competent, morally upright, and spiritually oriented teacher-citizens. Publishes an annual in-house journal "Pedagogy and Praxis."

ABOUT THE SEMINAR

The National Seminar focuses on Indian Knowledge System to integrate indigenous knowledge into curricula, enrich pedagogy, and nurture cultural sensitivity.

It empowers the faculty to foster collaboration, and addresses educational challenges. It also promotes networking among academia, researchers, and policymakers to holistically develop future educators with essential skills and values.
